

You never walk alone - Staying strong in Home Office

Last Friday morning at 8.45 AM (CET) lots of radio stations all over Europe started to play the football hymn 'You'll Never Walk Alone' as a sign of hope and unity against the Corona virus. The song is usually associated with the sport but in this case stands for nobody being alone in such turbulent times. With all negative aspects of the crises, there is a big emotional support amongst people which can also be seen through this initiative. The initiator of this special event is Sander Hoogendoorn, a moderator at the radio station 3FM in the Netherlands.

A similar idea of positivity against fear popped up within our team in the Netherlands. Very spontaneously our colleagues started sharing positive pictures of themselves and their home office set-up. This is a great reminder that despite being physically distant we are still all together, not isolated and therefore 'never walk alone'.

We love this initiative and would love to see many more of you in your new workspaces. Just post them into the All-company Yammer feed with the #OneTeam and #StayHome so we can create positive energy in this troublesome time.
